OFFICE OF THE
INFORMATION &
PRIVACY COMMISSIONER
for British Columbia

Protecting privacy. Promoting transparency.

I am pleased to present Privacy and Access 20/20: The Future of Privacy, a two-day conference in Vancouver on November 12-13, 2015.

In an age of ubiquitous technology, mass amounts of personal data are being digitized, shared, analyzed and monetized. These tools have broad application and will transform the way we work, the way we are governed, and the way we think about information and data.

But citizens and customers may not see the whole picture: including the ways state and private actors are using their personal information, for what purpose, and whether that use is lawful.

How can we embrace technology while vigorously defending the enduring value of privacy in the digital age?

This conference will have broad appeal to individuals in the public, private and non-profit sectors. Our agenda will offer thought-provoking, intellectual content from experts from industry, government, and civil society. We will showcase B.C. talent, but also include national and international thought leaders.

We hope you will join us at the conference.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Denham
